STEPHEN KING'S MISERY COMING IN OCT

We are thrilled to announce that our old friends and long-time theater buddies, Mike and Susan Evans, are bringing Stephen King's Misery to Fourth Wall's stage from October 17 to November 9. This spine-chilling production will captivate audiences with its intense drama and suspenseful storytelling.

The talented couple, Mike and Susan Evans, will direct and star in the two lead roles. Mike will portray the successful romance novelist Paul Sheldon, while Susan takes on the role of his "number one fan," Annie Wilkes. Their dynamic chemistry and deep understanding of the characters promise to deliver a riveting performance. Joining them is their skilled stage manager, Jeanine Kiley, who will also step into the additional role of the sheriff, adding another layer of intrigue to the production.

Misery follows the harrowing tale of Paul Sheldon, a bestselling romance novelist who finds himself in a dire predicament. After a car crash, Paul is rescued by his biggest fan, Annie Wilkes, only to wake up captive in her isolated home. Initially grateful for her help, Paul soon discovers Annie's dark side when she reads his latest manuscript and becomes enraged over the fate of her beloved character, Misery Chastain.

Annie demands that Paul write a new novel resurrecting Misery, and it becomes clear that Paul's survival hinges on his ability to satisfy Annie's desires. The once-celebrated author is now writing under duress, with his life hanging in the balance.

We are incredibly excited and happy to have Mike, Susan, and Jeanine bring this thrilling play to life on our stage at the Metropolitan. Their passion, dedication, and talent ensure that this production of Misery will be an unforgettable experience for all who attend.

Join us for an evening of suspense and drama as we watch this gripping story unfold. Don't miss the opportunity to see this talented team in action from October 17 to November 9. We hope to see you there!

FOURTH WALL WELCOMES NEW CREATIVE DIRECTOR

Pandora Muetterties as Hecate in Macbeth

Fourth Wall Entertainment Troupe is thrilled to announce the appointment of Pandora Muetterties as their new Creative Director. A familiar face to many, Pandora is the daughter of the Troupe's owner, Cyndie Klorer, and has been an integral part of the theater's journey from its inception.

Pandora creating props for Robin Hood

Pandora's connection to Fourth Wall Entertainment dates back to when the theater was just a concept discussed in the family's backyard seven years ago. Her early contributions included hosting paint and sip nights at the Metropolitan and facilitating the popular open mic events, affectionately known as Freak Show Friday.

After taking a brief hiatus from theater to focus on her family following the birth of her son, Pierce, Pandora has returned with renewed passion and vigor. This past summer, she graced the stage at the Metropolitan for the first time in over a decade, taking on the roles of Alex in Superstition and Hecate in Macbeth during Shakespeareance. Pierce, now eight years old, has also embraced his theatrical roots, recently appearing as Will Scarlet in the Off the Wall Youth Theatre production of Robin Hood.

Pierce as Will Scarlet in Robin Hood

Given her extensive involvement and natural flair for creativity—which her name, Pandora, fittingly symbolizes—it came as no surprise to the Fourth Wall community when Cyndie appointed her daughter as the new Creative Director. In Cyndie's own words, "Some may call it nepotism, and, well, they'd be right! My daughter is my best friend, and I can't think of anyone I'd rather have helping run my theater!"

With Pandora at the helm as Creative Director, Fourth Wall Entertainment is poised for an exciting and innovative future, continuing to captivate audiences and foster local talent.

LADY MACBETH'S DRESS: A MODERN MASTERPIECE ON DISPLAY AT THE CALAERAS COUNTY MUSEUM

Beth Brant as Lady Macbeth, Shakespearience, 2025

At this summer's annual Shakespearience, two captivating productions graced the stages of the Metropolitan: the comedy Superstition on the indoor Metropolitan stage, and William Shakespeare's Macbeth on the outdoor stage at Metropolitan Park. Among the many highlights was the stunning dress worn by Lady Macbeth, now on display at the Calaveras County Museum. This handcrafted masterpiece, created by Fourth Wall Entertainment's acclaimed Costumier, Lauren Ramirez, is a testament to the art of costume design. Crafting a Garment Fit for Royalty

The creation of Lady Macbeth's dress was a collaborative effort involving the talents of actress Beth Brant, who played Lady Macbeth, and technical wizard Niki Trammel. Together, they worked with Lauren Ramirez to bring this vision to life. The base of the gown was ingeniously crafted from an old set of crocheted curtains, which were painted a deep forest green to evoke the mysterious and regal aura of the character. The dress was further enhanced with exquisite gold trim and accent pieces. However, the true pièce de résistance of this garment was the meticulous addition of over 100 iridescent beetle wings, each painstakingly hand-sewn into place. The iridescence of the beetle wings added an otherworldly shimmer to the dress, making it a breathtaking gown truly fit for a queen.

An Homage to Historical Elegance
The inspiration for this modern-day masterpiece can be traced

The beginning stages of the Lady M dress back to the historic 'Beetle Wing Dress' designed for Lady Macbeth by Alice Laura Vansittart Comyns Carr (1850 - 1927). Created in London in 1888, Carr's dress utilized cotton, silk, lace, beetle-wing cases, glass, and metal, setting a precedent for combining natural elements with theatrical costume design.

A Labor of Love

The team dedicated six weeks to the construction of this extraordinary gown, ensuring it was ready for the opening night of Macbeth. Their dedication and creativity resulted in a dress that not only paid homage to historic costume design but also stood out as a unique piece of art in its own right. This display at the Calaveras County Museum offers a rare opportunity to appreciate the intricate craftsmanship and artistic vision that went into creating Lady Macbeth's dress. Visitors can marvel at the fusion of history, art, and drama, all captured in a single garment that tells a story as compelling as the play it featured in.
